				Some weeks ago I spoke to a TSA supervisor (I think her name was Monica, but I may be `	1 111	mistaken) regarding the fact that both my wife and I have been flagged for "special" treatment". The
		`		letters SSSS invariably appear on our boarding cards with all the resulting inconvenience. I was told that the reason was that our family names were probably "similar" to a name on an watch list.
				This is totally unacceptable, as I travel in the US a great deal, sometimes as often as 8-9 airports
		,		over a two month period! We are NOT a security risk and are not prepared to be considered as such, just because our name is "similar". I was supposed to receive an email including a special

I would very much appreciate it if you would take the appropriate measures to alleviate this terrible inconvenience to us which will also allow your staff to attend to those more "worthy" of your attention.

				I travelled with a friend yesterday who, like me, has a very common name.
				Unfortunately, her name is on the No Fly List. It took Independence Air 20 minutes to call in and provide her birth date which verified that she was not the person on the list.
				When we inquired about how to make future check-ins go more quickly, we were referred to TSA security personnel. When we questioned a TSA representative, he sent us back to the airline.
,				Can this process be improved with the airlines so the security delay will not occur for every flight?

				The last two times I tried to use web check-in for a flight I was instructed to check in at the airport (this was on July 17 at OAK and 20 at ABQ). There the ticket counter agent requested my driver's license. They disappeared into the back room with my license for about 10 minutes before returning and giving me a boarding pass. At the security screening point I was selected for additional screening. Apparently there is a who is on the government's "no fly" or "selectee" list. What a hassle!

Cc: Subject: No Fly List Apparently, I am not

Apparently, I am not on the "no fly" list, but someone with my name — — is. Now, every single time I fly I am subjected to numerous ridiculous and unnecessary delays. Being an attorney and business traveller, these delays are intolerably compounded due to my inability to use e-check-ins and skycaps, and having to wait for any number of confused airline personnel and supervisors to call the TSA and confirm, apparently using my birthdate, that the for the no fly list is not me. The last time I flew in June, I was 6 and a half months pregnant, and made to feel like a criminal. My husband and I have opted not to fly on several non-business-related occasions because the aggravation and delay is just too much.

It is inconceivable in this day and age that the only way to ensure that a person with a name as common as mine is not the person who is actually on the list is through additional screening, phone calls, and interrogation - all apparently in order to verify that my date of birth does not match that of the actually appearing on the no fly list.

Not getting into the obvious flaws in this ineffective and apparently irrational system, I have some questions. Would using my middle name in making airline reservations alleviate this problem? (my middle name is my maiden name much less common - would that ensure that my name is not "matched" with the apparently appearing on the list?). Other than legally changing my last name (which at this point would appear to be easier than flying), how t can alleviate these problems and delays in the future? Or am I forced to travel everywhere by car, train, and boat if I choose not to be treated like a criminal and subjected to embarassment and harassment every time I fly?

* **	-
				1 look forward to your guidance on this matter.

	the additional security, but I would like to know. Is it simply because a common name flags me, and if so why just recently? Thanks for your attention.

THE REAL PROPERTY OF THE PERTY				Please clarify for us why we are continually subject to the extreme security scrutiny which we have been forced to undergo the last two times we have returned to Atlanta, Georgia from Rochester, New York. The first time this happened on May 24, 2004 (AirTran flight 581), we were advised by the security screeners at the Rochester airport that AirTran was responsible for naming us for the
			*	intensive search that was performed. AirTran has denied this, indicating that the "SSS" boarding pass designations are from government-established criteria and are strictly random from their standpoint. When the exact same thing happened to us this past Monday, August 16 (AirTran flight

19-ÀÙG-	10031	No-Fly	Re: Question: Security	583), we asked at the AirTran ticket counter how that designation is made and they told us that "Security" was responsible for flagging us to be searched. One of AirTran's ticket counter personnel (who, we were told, would know because he works for both the airline and for security) summed it up by telling us that we were "in an FBI database." Can't someone please level with us? AirTran says that we are selected on the basis of government-established criteria, the security contractor says that AirTran has named us, and the TSA representative at the Rochester airport with whom we spoke said it could be either-that the "watch lists" are, in fact, from the government but the airlines are also expected to contribute a certain number of "random" passengers. This representative agreed with us that being named on both AirTran flights we have taken out of Rochester this year does not Message: How can I get off of the no fly list? I am tired of the hassle and inconvenience every time I fly. At one point, I don't think it was an issue a couple of years ago, but now, everytime I travel, it's a hassle. I'm called out in front of everyone and I have to get the airline personnel to find someone to approve me to get onto the flight on both legs of the flight. I also cannot earn valuable miles under my frequent miles program because I cant use any of the convenient electronic check-in features

:				or use online flight check-in to earn miles. Continental says they cant credit me those miles and that I cannot earn their miles at all, unless I get off of the no fly list. They advised me to contact you to see what can be done. I don't think it is fair that I have to endure the inconvenience each time I fly and I don't think that I should have to financially suffer because of it either. Please let me know what can be done.

	·			received nothing. This matter causes me unspeakable inconvenience. I am a bona fide jeweler and artist who visits the US periodically for about two months at a time to participate in art shows and usually fly to a new destination every weekend. My being invariably flagged means being held up at every flight for at least 30 minutes for a private screening with 2 TSA officers, as my hand luggage contains all my jewelry which they go through with a fine tooth comb, (usually messing it up). This is also an unnecessary intrusion on my privacy. At least twice I have almost missed flights. While I fully understand the need for screening you would do better to concentrate your efforts on someone who deserves it. Please help me in this matter. If there is a form of some kind that I can fill out to help solve this problem I would appreciate it if you sent it to me ASAP. 			Can you please give me some direction how to remove my name from a security list. Eveidently a name that matches my name is on your watch list and as such, I am unable to get a bording pass until cleared, which last night took approx 20 min. I plan to fly in the near future including at Thanksgiving and I fear that the delay will be longer. Please tell me how I can get the process started to remove my name from the list. FYI: I am also a Federal Law Enforcment Officer, but my ID and status does not appear to help. Thank you for your time and assistance.

		Sunday, 29 August I had the misfortune, once again, to travel out of Atlanta's Hartsfield-Jackson. I did not get anyone's names, and I don't think it matters. When in line for prescreening, one of the ladies that was checking boarding passes and ID's was yelling to all of us that we should all have ID's and boarding passes in a specific manner that she was holding up, or we would have to come back and try it again. Once through that initial check, myself and several more of us were herded into one of several lines. In doing so, the young man directing us was alternately open and closing lines, as I'm sure he was directed to do. The trouble with that was I was part of a group that was herded to the far end, and stood in line for nearly 20 minutes, while five other well controlled lines moved quickly. Once in this line, we were again verbally accosted by rude, impatient employees that had obviously had enough of customer troubles.
		I don't care that their job is hard to do every day. I don't care they deal with stupid and rude people all day. I want to hear a please and thank you, as well as one of your employees ASKING us to have our boarding pass ready to show. Several of the TSA employees I experienced Sunday are not cut out to have a job dealing with the public. We can all do without the attitude they convey.
		Security lines at Hartsfield-Jakson are a trouble, and I know there is something in the works - according to the local news - to fix that problem. Last minute travellers and those who wait until the last minute are truely a problem causer. However, I travel often through that airport, and the hardest part about it for me is listening to TSA employees berate, insult and verbally abuse their c
